No, Copa Airlines tickets are generally not transferable. Just like most major carriers, Copa has a strict policy that prohibits the transfer of tickets to another individual. Once a ticket is issued, it becomes strictly associated with the original passenger's identity. This means the name on the ticket must match the traveler's government-issued ID. Copa Airlines does not allow full name changes or the transfer of the ticket to a different person under any circumstances. However, minor name corrections—such as fixing a spelling error—may be permitted in certain cases. These corrections are subject to Copa's approval and must still reflect the identity of the original traveler. If you believe your ticket has a typo or incorrect detail, it's best to contact Copa Airlines directly at +1-866-673-2975 to resolve it quickly. Even if you cancel a flight and receive a ticket credit, that credit is non-transferable and can only be used by the original passenger. This policy also applies when reserving a new trip—any associated change fees will still apply, and the booking must remain under the same name. To make changes or corrections online, your ticket must be at least 10 minutes old to access Copa's voluntary exchange tool via their website or mobile app."
